Postal and federal employees play an important role in American life – processing and delivering mail, keeping travelers safe, and giving vital support to the elderly and disabled. Hard-working postal and federal employees make our country better in hundreds of ways every day.

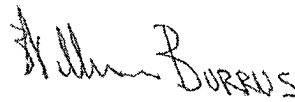

Postal workers are also good citizens of our communities, with thousands involved in volunteer activities. In addition, we make our neighborhoods and our nation better by contributing to the Combined Federal Campaign (CFC).

I encourage you to sign-up to contribute to the CFC during this year's enrollment campaign, and to designate as recipients charitable organizations that make a difference in the lives of working families. I invite you to select specific organizations such as the Postal Employees Relief Fund, the United Way, or other charities to receive your contribution.

Whatever choice you make, I urge you to participate in the 2009 Combined Federal Campaign and to support essential services in your community.

In union solidarity,

Susan M. Carney
Human Relations Director
